

Parting With a Leg.

An old soldier told a reporter of the most affecting parting he ever had in his life. It was a parting with himself, or rather a part of himself. He was in an engagement before Petersburg, and had the misfortune to come in contact with a piece of iron shell which exploded near him, and which succeeded in shattering his leg. Amputation was necessary, and shortly after he was lying in his tent. As he looked up he saw a cart piled up with legs and arms of others who had been unfortunate in the engagement, and right on top he recognized his own leg. "It was a sad parting," he said, "to see a part of you going away never to be returned again. I can never tell you what strange feelings came over me, and to this day I can see that black horse hauling my leg away to its last resting place."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

An Egyptian Wonder.

One of the greatest wonders of ancient Egypt was the famous artificial body of water called Lake Moeris. According to Herodotus, "the measure of its circumference was 3,300 furlongs, which is equal to the entire length of Egypt along the sea-coast." The excavation, which was made in the time of King Moeris (the Memnon of the Greeks and Romans), was of varying depths, and its center was occupied by two pyramids, the apexes of which were 300 feet higher than the surface of the water. The water for this gigantic artificial reservoir was obtained from the Nile through a canal, which six months of the year had an inflow and the other six an outflow, corresponding to high and low water in the river. The canal gradually filled with sand and the lake has long since evaporated, but the bottom is still one of the most fertile tracts in Egypt.

Sir Henry Irving's Dog.

Henry Irving's dog, Fussy, is his inseparable companion. "Fussy is an old friend of mine," said Sir Henry. "He has been with me many years now."

Fussy is sleek and fat and sedate now, but some years ago he distinguished himself by a remarkable feat. Mr. Irving was on his way to America. In leaving the train at Southampton Fussy became separated from his master and was lost.

A thorough search was made for the dog, but nothing was heard of him for three weeks. At the end of that time he turned up at the Lyceum Theater, more dead than alive. He was a sorry looking dog, but he made the trip from Southampton to London and had found his way back to the place where his master was usually to be found.—New York Sun.

His Last Blissful Thought.

The old organ blower of Pinklebury lay dying; the curate was visiting him.

"Would you mind, sir, asking our organist to play the dead march over me?" asked the sick man.

"Certainly I will, Jones," said the curate.

"Thankee, sir; none o' that 'ere tweedledum Beethoven, you know, sir; only Handel's."

"I am sure he will do it," responded the curate.

The old man lay placidly for a while, then exclaimed, with fervor: "How thankful I be that I shan't have to blow for him when he plays the loud part at the end."—Church Times.

John T. Waterhouse.

DECEMBER 7, 1895.

In every account of weddings, receptions, anniversaries and dear knows what there is always a description of the floral decorations but never a word about the pots that hold the plants and flowers. There are two reasons for this: One, because the pots are usually such common-place affairs that they are not worth mentioning; the other is because they escape the reporter's eye.

Heretofore there has been only one place in Honolulu where genuine majolica vases for plants could be bought. Now, there are two. Ours is the other one, and we think it is the best because the stock is larger and the assortment more varied. Today is a good time to come down and make your selection.

There used to be only two or three places where you could buy a decorated chamber set and the ones they sold were indifferent as to quality or style; they contained a certain number of pieces and they managed to pretty well cover a wash stand. Ours were selected first for their usefulness and next for their beauty. You never saw their equal in this country and you may never again—the odd shape will strike your fancy and the price, $5 to $12, will settle it so far as you are concerned. There's nothing cheap about them except the price. If you were in the States you would pay twenty dollars for them and never murmur. We don't want the earth but we want your trade.

In the same room with the chamber sets you will notice a lot of whatnot ornaments for holding flowers. Most anyone would appreciate one of them as a gift at this season, because they are pretty and useful, and you will enjoy giving one of them away because they are inexpensive. The assortment is larger than you imagine. If you prefer giving away cut glass and do not feel that you can spend much money buy a piece of English cut glass. It costs about half what the Dorflinger American does, but it is genuine.

We have the Dorflinger too.
